2nd August 1933]

withdrawal. With a trained staff, this is easily done. It is only a question of heart and attitude with them but the peoples' side of the matter has to be heard before action has to be taken. If only such an opportunity is given the reason for withdrawal of concessions can be met. Forest grievances are fouling the atmosphere of rural parts and clouding the view of the people as to Government's intentions. The withdrawal of even the few privileges given will fill the heart of the people with bitterness and make their daily life and living most miserable and irksome. The submission is to save the people from all this suffering and misery.
